Guillaume roux

LPTMS - Bât. 100 Université Paris-Sud
F-91405 Orsay France

Some recent applications of matrix-product states

After a brief introduction of the matrix-product state techniques for one-dimensional quantum system, I will discuss two applications: the study of the adiabatic limit in quantum quenches and an approach to estimate the temperature in a cold atoms experiment. Last, I will draw some perspectives in the context of Rydberg based quantum simulator.